

Consumers claim speed, cost and analytical expertise are the biggest benefits of computer-generated advice on financial products

Why would you be willing to use entirely computer-generated services as opposed to human advisors in the future?

